

Our Mission

Realizing Your Child's Potential

Master Faster is an organization founded in 2011 to service families in the community who have children diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder. Children with ASD have a unique way of processing information, and as a result, may act very differently than others in their peer group.

We specialize in providing individualized ABA Therapy and other therapeutic services in the convenience of your home or other settings of choice. We provide a comprehensive individualized treatment plan that considers the needs of both child and family. Our detailed treatment plans target goals in every area of development where your child needs help, such as communication, feeding, social, ADL, OT, PT, speech etc.

By embracing a comprehensive assortment of integrated therapies and aiding parents in making the therapy financially possible, Master Faster equips children who suffer from ASD with the essential tools required to create happier, healthier, and more independent futures for them.

Challenges Explained

Understanding ASD

The term ASD refers to a group of several developmental disabilities – which may have previously been diagnosed as Autism, PDD and Asperger's Syndrome. These conditions can cause significant social, behavioral and communication challenges in children.

ASD symptoms can range from mild to severe and may not always be recognizable by parents as a sign of the disability. This is particularly true for higher functioning children attending a regular school, who are typically viewed or labeled as "problematic." Oftentimes, the underlying source is actually ASD.

Master Faster was launched to help children with ASD master their full potential. Regardless of where they rank in the spectrum, these children are capable of significant – and often substantial – progress. Early and expert intervention can be the catalyst for achieving a more promising and productive future.

The Process

Practice Makes Perfect

Having a child diagnosed with ASD can be very challenging, but there's hope. Master Faster has an exemplary track record of helping children across New York State master critical life skills and conduct productive, fulfilling lives. The key is Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) Therapy -- a highly recommended and clinically validated method used to teach children with autism.

Featuring high rates of success in teaching fundamental skills to individuals with ASD, ABA is now covered by health insurance policies when there is an official ASD diagnosis present as a primary or secondary diagnosis. Our skilled therapists can thoroughly evaluate your child and customize an intervention program to meet his or her skills, needs and preferences.

Here is a basic outline of the ABA methods we use to help each child:

 OBSERVATION We observe your child's behavior in different settings to formulate an accurate understanding of his current strengths and weaknesses.	 ASSESSMENT We assess your child's level of function through formal testing.	 DEVELOPMENT We develop and customize a treatment plan with appropriate goals.
 WORK We work with your child on life skills according to your child's needs; programs may include goals such as tying shoes, grocery shopping, brushing teeth, personal hygiene learning how to have a conversation with siblings, neighbors & friends & related tasks.	 TRAINING We will train your family to deal with problematic behaviors, and how to apply newly acquired skills.	 TRACKING We track and report your child's progress on an ongoing basis.

Proven Solutions

ABA Therapy Explained

ABA Therapy is a scientifically proven method that uses principles and techniques to bring about meaningful changes in behavior. Some people contend that ABA teaches children to be robotic; that's a misconception. It's all reliant on the proficiency of the therapists teaching it.

Simply put, skills are broken down into small steps, and the child is given recurring opportunities to learn and practice these skills. ABA therapy can be provided in structured sessions, naturally occurring activities, or contrived situations.

A BCBA designs an ABA Treatment Plan, then trains and supervises the ABA therapists who implement the program on an individualized basis. Depending on the severity of a child's needs, and available insurance coverage, an ABA program can include anywhere from 5-15 hours of therapy each week.

Because every child has his or her own set of challenges, there is no one-size-fits-all approach to learning. We embrace the diverse rainbow of colors which comprise the spectrum of ASD and works closely with your child to bring about positive changes in behavior... in a most radiant way.

In the event of an ASD Diagnosis from an MD or psychologist – and a recommendation for ABA Therapy – Master Faster will guide you through the process step by step starting from verifying insurance benefits till making sure your child's program is up and running

Our professionals will gauge your child's learning strengths and weaknesses, and design a program catering to their requirements. Skills mastered in one area of life, such as in school, do not always translate to other environments such as home; children must also learn to cope outside the classroom. Master Faster will employ a variety of therapies to help your child succeed in life.

Some talk about hope.

We create it.

"As a school teacher, and BCBA, I was pained that a student in my class had a difficult time managing his behavior – to the point where his parents didn't want to keep him home. Two months after Master Faster started his home program, he stopped running around the house and became more connected. The family saw their child's potential and, thankfully, decided to keep him at home."

"It was so embarrassing and difficult to walk with my daughter on the street. She would scream, throw tantrums and sit down whenever we would walk -- even a short distance. The ABA Programs positively reinforced her walking skills daily and she can now walk places amazingly well. Her PT didn't think it was safe for her to walk stairs independently, but thanks to Master Faster, she learned how to."

Some pray for a brighter future.

We help your child get there.

"I was always considered a problematic child. My teachers and parents didn't know how to deal with my issues. The problems just got worse and I was about to be thrown out of school. Master Faster advised to be seen by a specialist to determine if there was an underlying ASD Diagnosis. Master Faster helped us implement an effective ABA treatment Plan. I am now in a regular school and doing well. ABA Therapy has been decreased and I'm about to be completely discharged."
